AFTER ROAD TRESPASSERS

The county attorney has advised Road Supervisor Wilson that persons detected removing barriers set up around the newly macadamized sections of roadway should be prosecuted for malicious mischief.

Wilson complains that people along King and on other streets have several times removed the barriers put up by his lunas and driven upon the newly made roads, doing them serious injury. "Ials has been most common at or near crossings. Wilson was uncertain as to the proper steps to take and sought advice.

Prosecutions will almost surely follow, as some of the offenders, particularly on King street between Thomas square and the Waikiki turn, can easily be caught up with.

There is to be a wholesale roundup of the vagrants of Honolulu. Today, on representations of the police department, Judge Andrade signed warrants for thirty five persons, charged with being idlers, and the arrests will be made as rapidly as possible.

the Japanese consul general, has been appointed to succeed S. Takahashi of the San Francisco Japanese consulate general. Mr. Takahashi having been appointed a secretary to the Japanese consul at Tientsin will succeed

The steamer Mirama, of the Canadian-Australian line, left Fiji for this city today twenty-four hours late.

sengers and eighty are booked.

ease, willed his body to the Oakland daughter in Honolulu. Morse was a native of Canada and fifty-eight years of age.

Harry B. Brown, of the Immigration Station, denies that he is the "Brown" who fainted at the baseball park Sunday afternoon. The information as to the name came from the police who took the sick man in charge, but they were presumably mistaken as to the identity of the person.

FUN ABOARD GOOD SHIP "DIRTY FEET"

A pretty name doesn't make a ship any more seaworthy, and because a romantic craft bears the title "Dirty Feet" is nothing against her crew or herself. This wonderful battleship is a man-and-woman-of-war, that is she is manned by women and womaned by men. When she hove in sight at the Opera House last evening, with Pollard No. 1 crew aboard, she was welcomed with interest, and the enthusiasm that grew as she maneuvered for the benefit of the well filled house was stirring, only there was more than enthusiasm. There were tears, willing eye-drops of bubbling laughter that could not be restrained.
You see, the good ship and her men and mascots were so irresistibly funny that even strangers were almost tempted to tell their family secrets in the back pews under the glamor of the calcium and the witchery of the sweet girlies on the stage, or on deck, whichever you prefer.

Alf, Goulding, dying neatly in the heat of a sponge battle is hysterical, and Teddie McNamara's tender holy-stoning of the deck is full of risible weeps. You see, she couldn't find the wharf because the dock had moved away; the anchor was so heavy that they had to weigh it twice and when the bulwarks belloyed they chased the chickens to the hatchway.

But all this was only a part of the vaudeville performance which the Pol-lards pulled off last night and which they will pull off again tonight.

Lillian Bull sent the curtain up again and again in her swinging song, and the effect in this stunt is something never before seen here.

Three maids swing in and out, over the heads of the audience. Electric lights and flowers make the great swings beautiful and set off the pink perfection of the human humming birds who grace the pretty pendulums manipulated by chappies in the rear.

In vaudeville each of the charming Pollard young gentlemen and ladies has his or her best entertainment to offer and the performance, perforce, becomes the exhibition of a group of stars. It is variety of such a nature that a surprise comes with every turn and pleasure is in every note of the delightful songs they give.

AT THE ORPHEUM

The Orpheum is to be congratulated upon the success of another of its experiments in the direction of the legitimate and high class drama. "The Two Orphans" was given last evening in a fashion which would reflect credit on companies much more ambitious and with a more extended reputation than that presented by the Filleford Company. The play was extremely well handled in every respect. Pietro Sosso's conception of the character of Pierce the cripple was extremely intelligent as was Lawrence Underwood's Jacques. Lloyd Edwards played the Chevalier with much cleverness. George Hernandez made an excellent Picard. Among the ladies the palm must be awarded to Miss Audie Due and Mattie Lloyd Luce for their interpretation of the title roles of "The Two Orphans." Anna Dodge was a good second in the character of Mother Frochard. The Elliffords last evening demonstrated its ability to take care of any modern drama and to play it acceptably. Miss Marriott was also good in the role of Marian which differs from any she has taken in the engagement. Judging from the reception last evening there will be a full house tonight. The Osborn children were to the front again with another catchy specialty.
The same bill will be given this evening and give way tomorrow night to the comedy "The Other Fellow."
